God of grace, we gather today from all over this beautiful state—from dairy farms and vineyards, from sand beaches and industrial centers, from the small towns, the suburbs, and the cities. From these varied places, we come together today to do work for Your people. Bless those of us who are gathered here with wisdom and compassion that we may make decisions which bring about the greatest good—that the people and even the land we represent may have lives of peace and justice, health and prosperity, joy and liberty, hope and happiness. Senator Klinefelt asked and was granted unanimous consent to make a statement and moved that the statement be printed in the Journal.

The motion prevailed.

Senator Klinefelt’s statement is as follows:

Today I have a package of bills called Melody’s Law up for consideration. These bills would amend the Michigan Penal Code to make necrophilia a criminal offense in Michigan, set sentencing guidelines, and amend the Sex Offenders Registration Act to include this offense.

Melody Rohrer’s murder and subsequent assault on her body was the catalyst for this package. Her husband Rick Rohrer and the family worked tirelessly to get these bills passed into law. Melody was his soulmate and the light of his life. For Melody’s family, let’s ensure that this despicable act is reflected in the offender’s criminal record in the future. I ask that all my colleagues support this package.

The Senate agreed to the title of the bill.

Senators Johnson, Runestad and Geiss asked and were granted unanimous consent to make statements and moved that the statements be printed in the Journal.

The motion prevailed.

Senator Johnson’s statement is as follows:

I rise in support of my amendment. The current language in the bill refers to a terminal medical or mental health condition resulting in a life expectancy of under 18 months. The conditions mentioned during the committee’s hearing, such as dementia and Alzheimer’s disease, are not considered forms of mental illness which have a specific definition. My amendment would strike this phrase, leaving the language to read, “A terminal medical condition resulting in life expectancy of under 18 months.” This language is more consistent with the intent of assisting individuals with terminal illness, while removing language that is vague and could potentially open the door to legal actions for conditions that would not typically be considered terminal illness such as substance abuse or depression.

Senator Runestad’s statement is as follows:

This bill could have easily been a bipartisan bill and I believe that this amendment is an appropriate path toward getting that support on a bipartisan basis. The concept of letting terminally-ill prisoners out on parole is one that I initially supported; however, as always, the devil is in the details. As my colleague from the 24th District outlined, the use of medical health in describing terminal illness is incredibly problematic.

Similar in tone to her amendment, my amendment will strike this verbiage and then add two important provisions. First, it will add language that allows those who receive a hospice recommendation a clear path to medically frail parole. In my experience, people who have been moved to hospice never have long to live, so it makes a lot of sense for the state to release them for their final months. Secondly, my amendment will add language that was stricken in this bill that will ensure someone who has been given 18 months to live but has not received a hospice recommendation will have to score low on a risk assessment. This is extremely important to ensure that particularly evil prisoners who still pose a threat to society are not released. Third, my amendment includes another provision which will ensure that a person who is paroled because of their terminal condition must report to their county prosecutor if they recover inside of that 18-month timeline—yes, this happens. If a parolee beats whatever illness gave them the diagnosis, then at that point they should not be allowed to remain on the streets and the prosecutor would be able to reinstate their original penalty.

I think these changes will ensure that the intent of the bill remains while also ensuring there are no unintended consequences which will allow those not deserving of release the ability to get out of prison early. This is such a simple thing to protect the American citizens. I realize that the majority will vote it down, but I would appreciate your support on my amendment.

Senator Geiss’ statement is as follows:

I want to thank all the partners who worked on this medically frail parole bill. Many of you who were here in previous sessions might recall that we did do a medically frail parole bill; however, in the time that it was introduced, passed, and signed into law, only one person has been able to be released on medically frail parole. This has been something that the families of loved ones who are incarcerated and medically frail or terminally ill have sought. Many advocacy groups have sought this. I will say it was actually a delight to work with the Department of Corrections on this bill to make it so some of our most vulnerable incarcerated people are able to not just be sent to a facility for their parole but also to be surrounded by their loved ones and so end their remaining days with dignity. I want to thank everyone on the committee who supported it and all the partners who worked on this. I urge a “yes” vote.

Senator Singh moved that the Senate proceed to consideration of the following bill:

The following bill was read a third time:

Resolutions

Senator Singh moved that rule 3.204 be suspended to permit immediate consideration of the following resolution:

Senate Resolution No. 126

The motion prevailed, a majority of the members serving voting therefor.

Senator Moss offered the following resolution:

Senate Resolution No. 126.

A resolution to recognize June 2024 as Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender, Queer+ (LGBTQ+) Pride Month. Whereas, Pride began in 1970 with the one year anniversary of the Stonewall Riots, a multi-day protest that is credited by many for starting the modern-day LGBTQ+ movement. In 1969, LGBTQ+ individuals, led by the efforts of Black and Brown trans women such as activists Marsha P. Johnson and Sylvia Rivera, risked their lives to protest the over-policing and injustice that threatened their existence on a daily basis, and elevated the visibility of the movement to a national scale; and

Whereas, The LGBTQ+ community has persevered through tragedies and struggles, such as the government’s insufficient and delayed response to assisting those with HIV/AIDS and the ongoing effort to protect the rights and ensure the safety of the LGBTQ+ community; and

Whereas, The movement has also celebrated victories of recognition, especially the historic Obergefell v. Hodges decision in 2015 which recognized marriage equality nationwide, the Bostock v. Clayton County decision in 2020 that upheld federal employment protections for the LGBTQ+ community, and Rouch World v. Department of Civil Rights in 2022 that affirmed LGBTQ+ protections are included in Michigan’s Elliott-Larsen Civil Rights Act; and

Whereas, After a fifty year legislative effort, the Michigan House and Senate in its 102nd Legislature, at long last, added sexual orientation and gender identity or expression as protected classes in the Elliott-Larsen Civil Rights Act, which was signed into law as Public Act 6 of 2023; and

Whereas, Still today, LGBTQ+ individuals, especially a disproportionate number of trans women of color, continue to be a target of harassment, violence, and discrimination, yet through community support and solidarity continue to celebrate love, authentic living, and self-acceptance; and

Whereas, Michigan stands out in this watershed moment as a state that embraces equality because our communities benefit from diversity and variety in viewpoints, talents, and cultural perspectives of its residents and from preserving the freedom, worth, and dignity of those in the LGBTQ+ community; and

Whereas, Michigan should expend all efforts to attract and retain talent and signal to the nation we are welcoming to all those who wish to contribute to the economic vitality of our state; and

Whereas, The people of Michigan understand, appreciate, and value the cultural, civic, and economic contributions of the LGBTQ+ community to the larger success of the state, and commit to the learning, humility, and work necessary to make the state fair, safe, equitable, and a refuge of stability regardless of sexual orientation, gender identity, or expression; and

Whereas, June is recognized and celebrated as LGBTQ+ Pride Month throughout the country and worldwide; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate, That the members of this legislative body recognize June 2024 as Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender, Queer+ (LGBTQ+) Pride Month.

The question being on the adoption of the resolution,

The resolution was adopted.

Senators Anthony, Bayer, Brinks, Camilleri, Cavanagh, Chang, Cherry, Geiss, Hertel, Irwin, Klinefelter, McCann, McDonald Rivet, McMorro, Polehanki, Santana, Shink, Singh and Wojno were named co-sponsors of the resolution.

Senator Moss asked and was granted unanimous consent to make a statement and moved that the statement be printed in the Journal.

The motion prevailed.

Senator Moss' statement is as follows:

For years, I spent a lot of energy and effort just trying to get this resolution to declare June as Pride Month in Michigan brought to the floor from being buried in committee, let alone debated and adopted. This year, knowing that our majority will adopt it, I don't have to fight just to be heard and can actually take the time to talk about the history of Pride in Michigan and uplift the LGBTQ Michiganders who wrote that history—many of whom have never been discussed in these legislative chambers before. I've learned a lot personally about this history from historian and MSU professor, my friend, Tim Retzloff. We know about the rebellion at Stonewall in June of 1969, which permeated across the country and sparked the modern-day Equality Movement.

The first official Pride happened on the event's one year anniversary. Gay activists here in Michigan saw these big gatherings take place in New York, Chicago, and Los Angeles, and wanted to host something similar in Detroit. So the first Pride in Michigan took place in June of 1972 and was called Christopher Street Detroit, named after the street on which the Stonewall Inn was located, with events happening in Detroit, Lansing, and Ann Arbor. Ann Arbor declared the week of June 19th that year as Gay Pride Week, becoming the first known governmental body in the country to do so. The march occurred on June 24, down a one-mile stretch of Woodward Avenue with about 200 marchers in a single lane led by a drag queen named Aretha. The main banner listed the group's demands said, "Repeal All Anti-Gay Laws and Full Civil Rights for Gay People." The march ended with a rally at the Kennedy Square, with speakers including Jim Toy, who was considered the first publicly out man in Michigan.

As the decade progressed, gay activists sought to have the community included in the draft protecting discriminated classes in the Elliott-Larsen Civil Rights Act, as was a demand of the movement but it was signed into law in 1977 without those protections. That same year, the Michigan Organization for Human Rights was founded with the goals through the '80s to amend Elliott-Larsen and to increase funding for AIDS research, education, and care. That group would later be absorbed and succeeded by Triangle Foundation, known today as Equality Michigan, founded by Jeff Montgomery, Henry Messer, and John Monahan in 1991, with a focus on victim services to take the data of LGBTQ people facing discrimination in Michigan when few other groups could or would, so they could prove how pervasive this problem was and the urgency to remedy it.

By the 2000s, the Equality Movement faced a serious setback with the ban not just on marriage equality but even civil unions in our State Constitution. In 2014, with another very public failure to amend Elliott-Larsen, the community gathered to ensure we would have representation in the Legislature, and Jon Hoadley and I formed what would be the first LGBTQ caucus here, which today is seven members strong. A year later in 2015, Michiganders April DeBoer and Jayne Rowse, led by their attorney, Dana Nessel, became joint plaintiffs in what would the historic Obergefell case declaring bans on marriage equality in Michigan and across the country unconstitutional. We still need to take that language out of our Constitution here in Michigan. In 2020, Aimee Stephens, a trans Michigan woman who faced workplace discrimination, was among the plaintiffs when the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that the federal Civil Rights Act indeed protected LGBTQ people.

And of course, last year this majority here passed my bill to add sexual orientation and gender identity as protected classes in the Elliott-Larsen Civil Rights Act. This law went into effect this year, 52 years after Aretha led those 200 marchers down Woodward Avenue demanding equal rights. These activists throughout this very long history waited a very long time, but at long last our pro-equality majority in the Legislature is here, now. And as we adopt this resolution to recognize the history Pride Month in Michigan, we must also commit ourselves to the continuing work ahead toward full equality. I ask for adoption of this resolution.
